Petition title: Electric shock dog

To the House of Commons,

The petition of residents of the United Kingdom

Declares that electric shock dog collars are harmful and have no place in modern dog training; further that the advice from academia, dog behaviourists and trainers is clear – electrocuting dogs does not help train them; and further that the petitioners aims to protect dogs from cruelty and unnecessary pain.

The petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to ban the sale, distribution and use of electric shock dog collars once and for all; further that, the petitioners pray that the House of Commons urge the Government to ban the sale, distribution and use of electric shock collars once and for all.

And the petitioners remain, etc.
